President's Corner

DEBBIE LIPCSEY

Hi everyone!

MAESSR has now rescued more than 2,600 English Springer Spaniels since 1998. That really just is incomprehensible to me. I watch as the members of the MAESSR family go above and beyond in their efforts to save even more Springers, and they show me that the world is really a wonderful place. But I have recently had two things come to my attention about some MAESSR adoptions that greatly concerned me.

My first concern is families that do not have their MAESSR Springers on heartworm preventative or are not giving it 12 months a year. Heartworms is a painful disease that can kill your dog. Every person that has adopted a dog from MAESSR has given their word as part of the MAESSR adoption contract to keep their MAESSR dog on heartworm preventative 12 months a year. We hear many different excuses, but not one is valid. We don't care that your vet says your dog does not need it 12 months a year. You promised in a legal document that you would give the preventative 12 months a year. My message here is, "Please ensure that your dogs are on heartworm preventative." It is an easily preventable disease, and after all of the work and love the MAESSR family has given each of these babies, we do not want to see them suffer with heartworms.

My second concern is people that feel they do not need to return the dog to MAESSR if they cannot keep it any longer. This is also covered in the MAESSR adoption contract. MAESSR will take their dogs back for their entire lives. In fact, we insist upon it. We truly hope that all adopted MAESSR dogs are with their families forever. However, if they cannot be with their families, no matter what the reason, they need to return to MAESSR. One of the promises we make to these precious babies when they come to MAESSR is that we will always be there for them. Every dog we save is precious and deserves the full benefits of being a MAESSR dog.

I would like to thank each of you for being part of the MAESSR family. It takes all of us to continue helping Springers. I hope to see all of you at one of the MAESSR picnics this year.

Hug your springer babies for me.

Who're Those Volunteers? The Stockers! • MARTHA W. McCARTNEY

If you want to pick a pair of dedicated MAESSR volunteers, you needn't look any further than Geraine and Vern Stocker of Williamsburg, Virginia! Geraine says that their first dog, an "almost" Springer, was a mixed breed they adopted from an animal shelter in Memphis, Tennessee. By the time he crossed the Rainbow Bridge at age 15, he'd taught them all about the breadth and depth of Springer Love. That prompted them to adopt their first purebred Springer. Smitten again by the love-bug, they went on to acquire a second Springer, this time adopting one from an animal shelter in Arlington, Virginia.

By the time the last of those two Springers passed on, the Stockers had moved from northern Virginia to Williamsburg. After enduring only six days of doglessness, Geraine and Vern decided that it was time to find another Springer that needed a loving home. It was 1998 and MAESSR had just been formed, but no adoptable Springers were then available. Fortunately, they found Chelsea, a liver-and-white puppy from Richmond, Virginia, and welcomed her into their hearts.

Two years ago, Geraine, who had spent several years volunteering for an animal shelter in Williamsburg, encountered some MAESSR volunteers at an outdoor fundraiser. Impressed with their friendliness and inspired by their dedication to rescuing and re-homing Springers, she decided to become a volunteer. She began volunteering as an interviewer, conducting pre- and post-adoption interviews. Later, she became part of the team that acknowledges donations made during the holiday season and the monetary gifts that are made to honor or memorialize someone. Meanwhile, Geraine's husband, Vern, became part of MAESSR's transport team, sometimes transporting rescued Springers over great distances to rendezvous with their foster family or forever home. Vern, like Geraine, is a dedicated MAESSR volunteer and Springer lover.

During the 2010 and 2011 Christmas season, the Stockers graciously opened their home to MAESSR supporters by hosting a holiday party. Everyone enjoyed those annual fundraising events, which have raised literally thousands of dollars for MAESSR. Moreover, attendees got to meet Chelsea, who's now 12 years old. They also had an opportunity to meet and greet other members of the MAESSR family, some of whom have gone on to sponsor other fundraising events.

Give a HIGH PAW to the Stockers, two very important members of the MAESSR volunteer team! Geraine and Vern, we salute you!

More easy ways to help MAESSR this issue. You know how you can earn frequent flier miles or free gasoline by using a particular credit card or buying through a merchant's site? Here are three easy ways to shop online and help MAESSR.

We all shop, we all like coupons, and we all eat—right? Here's a way to help MAESSR while you do those three things.

Go to goodsearch.com, register your e-mail and a password, and choose Mid-Atlantic English Springer Spaniel Rescue, Richmond, Virginia as your charity.

On the home page in the middle column are listed goodcoupons, goodshop, and good dining. Click on any one and be amazed at the lists of stores and restaurants which will offer you coupons and donate a percentage of your purchase back to MAESSR.

It's easy! The hardest part is remembering to access the Web site of the store of your choice through goodsearch.com.

Enter iGive.com from the MAESSR.org Web site: <http://maessr.org/donate/affiliates.php>. Register your name, e-mail, and a password. You will then be asked to install the iGive.com software. The home page lists the directions to get you started, but basically you click on the iGive icon to see the list of participating stores. Choose your favorite store, and start shopping and helping MAESSR.

iGive also offers coupons. Spend some time exploring the site.

After your first store visit, even if you do not make a purchase, you'll receive an e-mail from iGive explaining how donations are made and when they are credited to your personal account.

As mentioned above, the trick is remembering to do your online shopping through the iGive.com icon found at <http://maessr.org/donate/affiliates.php>.

Type adoptashelter.com in on your browser, and select a shelter by scrolling the list or typing in Mid-Atlantic English Springer Spaniel Rescue. (I found it worked better when I entered "Virginia" and scrolled to our listing). Click on our listing when it appears and up comes a wonderful description of us. Click on the Shop Now button under the description and have fun browsing the variety of stores available. When you choose your favorite store, the coupons available and percentage of donation will be listed. Remember to go to adoptashelter.com before you shop.

The Adoption Process

CANDY LYNN

So, you've decided to adopt a Springer from MAESSR! You've filled out the adoption application. What happens now? This is where the Application and Adoption Team will begin the adoption process. The applications are divided between April Smith, Carrie Holt, and Kelly Fiala depending on the state from which the application came. A team member e-mails the applicant to let them know their application was received, requests permission to contact the applicant's vet to release information to MAESSR, and, if the applicant rents their home, obtains the landlord's permission for the applicant to have a dog. Team members answer applicants' questions, plus fill in any missing information on the application. Then, with the veterinary referral and rental agreement (if necessary), they forward the application to a MAESSR interviewer.

The MAESSR interviewer contacts the potential adoptive family to schedule the interview, and, if the family does not have a current vet, requests personal references. During the interview, the interviewer gets information regarding family lifestyle, any current pets, and the specifics of the Springer they are looking to adopt so MAESSR can make a perfect match between the family and their new Springer. This is also a perfect time to educate new dog owners about the responsibility and commitment it takes to add a new dog to their family and about the specific policies and procedures related to adopting a MAESSR dog. Interviewing a potential adoptive family is a great opportunity to meet many wonderful people who will provide loving and caring homes for MAESSR Springers!

Next, the interviewer submits a summary containing all the necessary information to the Adoption Coordinators, who do an amazing "match-making" between the new forever family and their Springer! All interview summaries are sent to either Pat Race or Kathleen O'Neill, depending in which state the applicant resides. Kathleen and Pat review the summaries for any further questions and/or a home visit. Then they send a "Congratulations, You Are Approved" e-mail to the waiting adoptive families, with articles attached all about English Springer Spaniels and on bringing your new dog home, plus an explanation of the waiting list for adult dogs and/or puppies. If an adoptive family is interested in a particular Springer on the MAESSR Web site, this also provides the adoption coordinators more information on the type of Springer the family wants. If the dog is a "senior," there is virtually no wait. Now the search begins for the best match of the adopting home and the adopted dog. Once a match is made, the adoptive family receives an offer of a particular Springer MAESSR has in mind. The adopting family can now speak to the foster home about the offered Springer. Once the adoptive family says, "Yes, this is the Springer for our family!", the transport is arranged, the contracts are filled out and signed, and the adoption fee sent in. A MAESSR Springer has now found his or her new forever family!

Every step of the adoption process, even the "hard-to-wait" offer of a dog, brings a family and a dog the best gift ever—a new companion and a forever, loving home! If you have further questions about the adoption process, please e-mail applications@maessr.org.

Petey III—A Special MAESSR Boy

TISH PEROSIO

Petey is only five years old, but he has faced several major health problems since coming into foster care. He had badly infected skin that was irritated by fleas and allergies, causing him to scratch off much of his fur. With a healthy diet, regular baths, medications, and no more fleas, Petey has started to put on weight and grow back the fur on his back, legs, and tail. Unfortunately, once the skin was on the mend, Petey's foster mom noticed one day that he would not put any weight on his left rear leg. The vet diagnosed a torn ACL, and the plan was to rest for six weeks, taking only very short walks, to allow that ligament to scar and the knee to stabilize so it could support him. All was going well until he tore the other ACL! This is very common, since the dog is forced to put much of his weight on the one good leg which sometimes cannot take the strain.

Luckily for Petey he is a MAESSR boy. Through the coordinated efforts of several dedicated volunteers, Petey was transported across Pennsylvania to a well-known orthopedic surgeon who had operated on another MAESSR dog with the same problem. The very next day he underwent repair of the left ACL and removal of a torn meniscus. That night, in the care of a wonderful temporary foster home, Petey was resting comfortably. He is receiving pain medicines along with some limited physical therapy, icing of the knee, and massage to help him heal. Petey has been a real trooper through all of this, never once complaining about the move to a new place or the attempts to manipulate his knee even though he is clearly in pain.

The plan is for Petey to return to his original foster home, gradually increasing his walking and continuing the physical therapy. Hopefully in six weeks he will be strong enough to permit another trip across Pennsylvania to the surgeon who will operate on his torn right ACL. Then it is back to square one with rest and physical therapy and massage. Keep Petey in your thoughts while he is on the mend.

Petey's foster moms have taken some wonderful videos of Petey before and after his surgery. To view these videos, visit MAESSR's Facebook page at <http://www.facebook.com/pages/Mid-Atlantic-English-Springer-Spaniel-Rescue/200585326286>

Being Pet-Prepared in an Emergency • BECKY BOULLIE

Hurricane warning! These are words that can evoke panic in even the most level-headed of us. High winds, tornadoes, storm surge, flash flooding—are all things to beware of. The best way to keep your head when bad weather is on its way, or another emergency has occurred, is to be prepared. Be ready for the worst when things are going best.

Emergency shelters will not always let our pets stay with us so it is best to find a place to go before disaster strikes. Research pet-friendly hotels and motels wherever safe ground will be. Or perhaps you have a friend or relative who can take you and/or your pet(s) for a week or more. Be sure to keep your records up-to-date. You wouldn't want to be surprised to find the motel you were planning on staying at no longer accepts pets. If shelters in your area do accept pets, remember to have a crate available to use at the shelter.

What if an emergency strikes while you are away from home and can't get there? Be prepared by having a neighbor who is willing to collect and/or care for your pets. Emergencies are not always weather-related; you could have a health emergency or accident. In this instance you would want your neighbor to be familiar with your pet and its habits around the house so he wouldn't have to search for it. He would need a key and to know where the emergency kit is located, so if evacuation is needed, they can get out quickly and easily.

An assembled emergency kit, placed in an easily accessible area, should include copies of all medical records, including proof of vaccinations; prescriptions in a waterproof container (remember to rotate this every two months); first aid kit; information on feeding schedules and diet requirements; description of any medical conditions or behavior problems; name and phone number of your veterinarian, pet sitter, and other emergency contact information for you and your pet; sturdy leashes, harnesses, and/or carriers to transport pets safely; food and water (at least seven days worth for each person and pet—also rotate every two months); bowls; can opener and spoon (if needed); cat litter/pan/scoop; toys; bedding; paper towels, liquid dish soap, and disinfectant; disposable garbage bags for clean up; flashlight; blanket; recent photos; and a blanket or piece of clothing with the owner's scent.

An emergency kit for the human members would also be useful.

If you think you might stay home and ride out a storm, you will need to identify a safe room in your home with no windows or other hazards such as flying debris; this place should also be easy to clean. Well before the storm hits bring in your pet and keep them close as they can be hypersensitive to weather changes and can get anxious or aggressive. You will already have your emergency kit with food and medicine, and water can be collected in sinks or bathtubs for later use. Be prepared to be without electricity for a week or more. After the storm has passed things outside might be strange to your pet, so take it out to get reacquainted with the landscape.

Be sure to keep your contact information updated. Check your pet's identification tags, license, rabies, and veterinarian and microchip information. Be sure to provide your cell phone number as well as an out-of-the-area contact phone number in case local phone lines are disrupted.

Canine Meeting and Greeting

DEBBIE BROOKFIELD

With Springerfest season fast approaching, it is time for both humans and their dogs to get ready to interact with dogs whom they have never met before. The MAESSR picnics are meant to be a fun time for all involved so we wanted to share a few helpful hints about canine meetings and greetings.

I realize that for many of us, the picnics are an opportunity to connect with people we may only see once or twice a year, as well as a great opportunity to make new friends. While we are busy socializing, we need to remain focused on our four-legged friends. Your dog may usually be friendly and laid back. We all need to keep in mind that the picnic setting is an unfamiliar environment with many new sights, sounds, and smells. This can create a heightened sense of excitement in our dogs, and because of this, our dogs may not respond with their usual behavior when meeting new people or dogs. Another factor is the “leash factor”—some dogs are better meeting new “friends” when off-leash; however, that is not possible at the Springerfests. Another important “leash factor” to remember is that retractable leashes are not to be used at the picnics. There is less control with the retractable leashes, which is an important factor should a problem arise.

When approaching a person with an unknown dog, it is important to ask if it is okay to have your dog greet the other dog. Just because your dog is everyone’s best friend, the other dog may not feel the same way. If the other person agrees to have the dogs meet, it is important to watch both dogs for signs of stress, exhibited through the body language the dogs. Stress behaviors to watch for are muscles tensing, body posturing toward or away from the other dog, either dog licking their lips, the dog’s breathing changing from normal to paused, and ear carriage going from normal to back or front. If you notice any of these behaviors, it is best not to continue with the greeting and just move on. When moving on, do not make a big deal about it. Speak to your dog in a normal tone of voice. It is also important to remember that any anxiety we humans may have travels “right down the leash” to our canine companions. They respond to how we are feeling and may take this to mean there is a threat to “their” person.

If both dogs appear calm and not stressed, you can proceed with the greeting. Remember that for our dogs, butt and groin sniffing is an appropriate way to meet and greet. If one of the dogs gives a snarl to let the other dog know they are uncomfortable with this behavior, that is also appropriate dog behavior. While the dogs are getting to know one another it is important to stay quiet and let them do their “thing” while observing for any signs of stress in either dog.

I am looking forward to another Springerfest season, and especially to meeting many new friends, both human and canine.
